MISSOURI MULES THAT BOTH BITE AND KICK, IN RETREAT TO SALONINA

(Note—The following is the sixth installment of the allied retreat story of the allied retreat from Serbia. In the previous installment Shepherd told of his visit to the French front in Serbia and of stopping for the night at a French hospital at Strumitza.—Editor.)

By William G. Shepherd, (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Salonica, Dec. 11.—The French retreat began to sweep past Strumitza, while we were dining. The valley of the Vardar was filled with moving lights, with the clatter of wagons, the confused sounds of the camp and the occasional rattle of a railroad train. Everything was coming down the valley from Kriovak, forty miles away, men, supplies and all. The French had tried to reach the Serbians; the long arms of their cavalry scouting parties and the even longer fingers of their "seventy-fives" had been feeling, feeling through the Serbian mountains in an effort to come in contact with the Serbian right and thus save Monastir and southern Serbia. But the Serbian right had been turned back, the Serbians in their hillside trenches where I had seen them a week before, had been routed. Kriovak, therefore, was no longer of benefit to the French or the Serbians, and the French were retiring from it.

We dined at a long table in a stone shed. The shed was new. It had been built next to the railroad station for a dining room for General Baillaud's staff, the general himself occupying the station. This was the first day the stone shed had been used and Dr. Vassal, director of the medical corps of General Baillaud's division, who sat at the head of the table, told us he was very proud to have us eat in the new dining room.

"The point is not yet dry," he said, "but our men worked hard to put up the building out of such rough pieces of stone as they could find along the river bank and we are very proud of it."

What did it matter that after a merry dinner one end of the room caved in while Eysaeri, a poet from Paris, was reciting in a loud roaring voice, a poem he had written about the Cailloux case? Some of the stones fell on him, too, though the most of them went on the table. What did it matter if the whole new stone house went down? It would have been better so, for within two days, as the fates of war were to have it, the Bulgars were to own Strumitza, railroad station, stone dining room and all.

But only one end of the room caved in, so we were able to go on with our dinner. Bardat, an actor from Paris, whose name and face are often on the bill boards, and who looks like Raymond Hitchcock, spoke funny pieces. John McAtcheon of the Chicago Tribune, with a big pencil, made caricatures of our hosts on the side of the railroad station which formed the one safe wall of the dining room, and Richard Harding Davis made a speech, presenting to our hosts the caricatures as a permanent reminder of their American newspaper guests. Some Bulgarian officer has admired the sketches by this time.

The Noise of Retreat.

Amid all our merriment there was the noise of retreat, the sound of voices from many tents, the neighing of the horses picketed for the night, the rattle of hundreds of wagons along the nearby road and the rumble of steam trains.

It isn't often, in this war, that a newspaperman finds the opportunity to sit at a campfire in the midst of tents and talk with ordinary soldiers. Most of the views that newspapermen have of the war have been secured under the guidance of high officers and in a routine and scheduled way. So when I saw a chance later in the evening to leave the camp where we were sleeping and risk my neck in finding my way a quarter of a mile across country to where the campfires were bright, I took a chance.

There were lights in many of the tents, though it was after 11 o'clock. I heard the sounds of a poker game coming from one tent. In a brightly lighted automobile ambulance I discovered another poker game under way. No one seemed to be either sleeping or sleeping. Most of the talk I heard was happy talk, banter and joking. This was not to be wondered at. These men had been fighting in mud and snow, against odds and for several weeks. They had done their best; it was the Serbian army that had failed, because it had been tired out by weeks of retreat. These French men were honorably retiring from a position which was no longer of use to the allied cause. They were not running away in a rout; they were not being whipped. Their job was done and their pleasure in leaving an unpleasant position was only natural and it struck me, as I walked through the camp, that it was happiness that was keeping them awake.

I was partly right, perhaps, but the real reason that there was so little sleep was that the camp was to be torn up and moved at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Drink "Two Quart" Kind.

"Hallo! Who are you?" a sentry standing beside a big log fire challenged me. All about him were picketed horses and mules.

"Press correspondent with passes," I explained.

"Come here and show them to me," he said.

I walked into the center of the ring of horses and showed my papers. Three or four Frenchmen with steel hats came up to see them, too. A civilian American!

"Rare birds," said one soldier. "Would I sit down on the log, beside the fire. A soldier brought out a canteen and asked if I would have a drink. I would. He poured me a tincup full of bellifren French army brandy. They took drinks of the same also themselves

A BANKER'S ADVICE TO HOUSEWIFE ON ECONOMY

Cleveland, O. Jan. 22.—"If every family saved one match a day, the United States would be ahead $500,000 a year," today said E. D. Conner, president of one of the biggest financial institutions here. Conner believes every housewife should be paid a weekly wage to prevent family squabbles; and that every wife should prevent food waste. He claims fortunes in food are thrown into the garbage cans. The banker believes bills should be paid by check and a stipulated amount saved weekly.

The matter of consolidating the commercial club with the LaFrore club as brought up by a committee from the latter club several months ago was discussed at length and as the committee from the LaFrore club reported that the union of the two clubs was impossible the matter was disposed of.

Demurrer Sustained.

Owing to a technical defect in the indictment charging the Smith Brothers of Independence with keeping a gambling house and running a gambling game as returned by the grand jury, Circuit Judge H. H. Belt has sustained the demurrer to the indictment on the grounds that the defendant can only be tried for one offense at a time. According to the district attorney the grand jury will be called back within a few days to sign a new bill against the defendants.

INJURED MAN WAS GRITTY

After having severed one of the bones of his left leg with an axe, D. L. Scott, a woodcutter, living near Sutherland, crawled more than a mile through two feet of snow to his cabin where he summoned help by firing a gun. He was brought to Roseburg Wednesday night and admitted to Mercy hospital where he is receiving medical treatment. His condition is said to be precarious.

Nine hours passed before Scott was able to attract the attention of two men who chanced to be working in the vicinity of where he lived. Twice during the struggle through the deep snow, the injured man lost consciousness, but upon each occasion he revived and succeeded in retaining control of his faculties by eating handfuls of snow. Mr. Scott had lived near the scene of the accident for some time past and is quite well known in and about Sutherland. He is said to be a worthy man and his misfortune is deplored by his many friends.—Roseburg Review.

130,000 BUSHELS $130,000

One hundred and thirty thousand bushels of wheat, bringing an even dollar each bushel, were sold Tuesday by a score of ranchers to the Kiddle millers. After the purchase which cost the millers $130,000, wheat sank a cent in Chicago today during the noon hour. Scores of wheat men were holding for a dollar and most of them let go the moment that price was quoted.—La Grande Observer.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and No-body Will Know

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair which faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because none can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You damp a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

California Motor Oil and the Exposition

One thing the Exposition has done for California petroleum, it is said, has been the correction of the mistaken theory that good motor oil couldn't be made from asphalt-base crude.

A representative of one of the big California refiners says that ever since the awards of the Exposition juries have been given wide publicity, motorists and dealers who couldn't see anything but Eastern oil are coming around to using and advocating oil made from California petroleum.

"Paraffine base oil was the first motor oil developed," says this refinery representative, "and even after Western oil had been developed and proved, the old tradition concerning paraffine base oil still clung, encouraged no doubt by the refiners of these oils."

"And by the way, not only the Exposition juries, but gas engine authorities are now endorsing asphalt-base motor oils."

THE DEVIL HAS QUIT HIS JOB.

The Devil sat by the lake of fire on a pale of sulphur kegs; His head was bowed upon his breast, his tail between his legs; A look of shame was on his face, but sparks dripped from his eyes, He had sent his resignation to the throne up in the skies.

"I'm down and out," the Devil said— He said it with a sob; "There are others that outclass me, and I want to quit my job. Hell isn't it with the land that lies along the Rhine; I'm a has-been and a piker and, therefore, I resign.

"One ammunition maker, with his awful shot and shell, Knows more about damnation than all theimps in hell, Give my job to Kaiser William or to the Russian Czar, Or King George, or J. P. Morgan, or some such men-of-war.

"I hate to leave the old home, the spot I love so well; But I feel that I'm not up-to-date in the art of running hell." And the Devil split his apron of steam at a brimstone humble bee, And muttered that he'd guessed he'd go and hunt up young John D.

SOAK IT TO HIM.

When a man has built a barn— Tax him! When a man has cleared a farm— Tax him! When he lays another roof— When he grows another hoof, Hustle 'round and get the proof, Then tax him!

Has a man some idle earth— Don't tax him! Though it's climbing up in worth, Don't tax him! Let him reap what others sow, They are rather chumps, you know! If they were not they would go, And tax him!

Bumper Grain Crops Good Markets — High Prices

Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winners of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweepstakes on Alfalfa. No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle feed and interest on the grasses and country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels. Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good meadows, splendid alfalfa, exceptional feed crops, and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.
